

What is claimed is:

1. An image coding device comprising:
 - data adding means for adding specific data to input image data at the end of image data; and
 - 5 arithmetic coding unit for coding said image data to which said specific data is added,
 - wherein said arithmetic coding means codes the specific data after coding the image data.
- 10 2. An image coding device comprising:
 - adding data generating means for generating specific data; and
 - arithmetic coding means for receiving the specific data after input of image data, coding the specific data immediately after coding of the image data, and issuing coded data,
- 15
 - wherein said adding data generating means generates the specific data until the arithmetic coding means issues a specified amount of the coded data.

卷之三